Introduction

About these guidelines

These brand guidelines provide details of how and where you can use the partner badges that recognise your partnership, skills or experience with Xero.

By adhering to the guidelines, your use of the badges and the way they are displayed will have a greater impact. You'll also be helping retain the value and credibility of the Xero partner brand that has developed through consistency of use and familiarity.

Find out more

To earn Xero badges, you need to be a member of the Xero partner program.

Audience

The intended audience for these guidelines (except the final section) is Xero partners who have earned and been emailed a Xero badge. If you haven't received one that you're entitled to, please contact us.

The intended audience for the final section, Other use of Xero brands and content, is all Xero partners. Please contact brand@xero.com if you have any queries about this section.

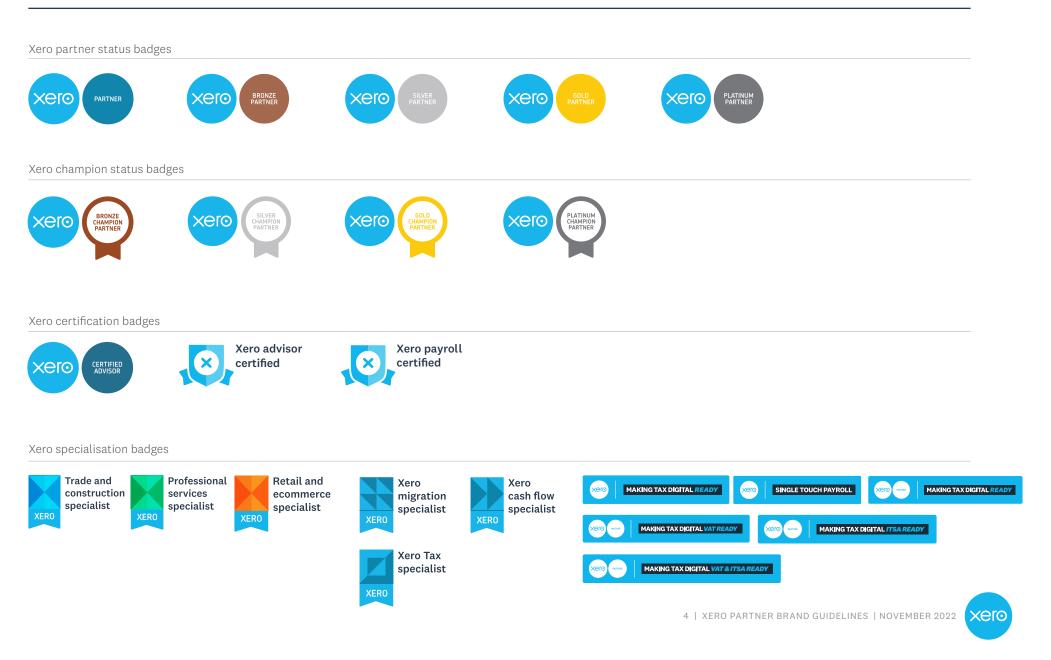

Scope

These guidelines cover where you can display the different types of badges, the correct colours, the minimum size for legibility, and the minimum amount of surrounding white space to ensure they're displayed effectively. These guidelines also cover what is considered acceptable use of our brands, and what is not.

Queries

Examples of usage are included, but they're not exhaustive, so do ask if you're unsure. Just contact your account manager or brand@xero.com with any queries.

About the Xero partner program badges

Xero badges are used in the Xero advisor directory and may be used by accountants, and bookkeepers and financial advisors to show:

- your partner and champion status
- the certifications you've earned
- the specialist skills you've developed

Important: The Xero logo is not for stand-alone use by partners - use your partner status badge instead.

Partner and champion status badges

Partner and champion status badges show that your practice has met and maintains the requirements for the partner status level. See Partner programme benefits explained for details.

Certification badges

Certification badges show that you have completed a programme of courses that provides you with the knowledge and skills to serve clients proficiently and effectively. To maintain your certification, you must do quarterly updates.

Specialisation badges

Specialisation badges show that you have completed a course that provides you with the knowledge and skills to advise and assist clients. Additional learning requirements may apply. For your practice to be recognised, it may also need to meet requirements that prove your experience, eg, number of clients. No annual or quarterly updates are required to maintain a specialisation.

2. Partner and champion status badges

Who can use

Partner status and champion badges may be used by members of the Xero partner program who have met the criteria for the status level.

Where to use

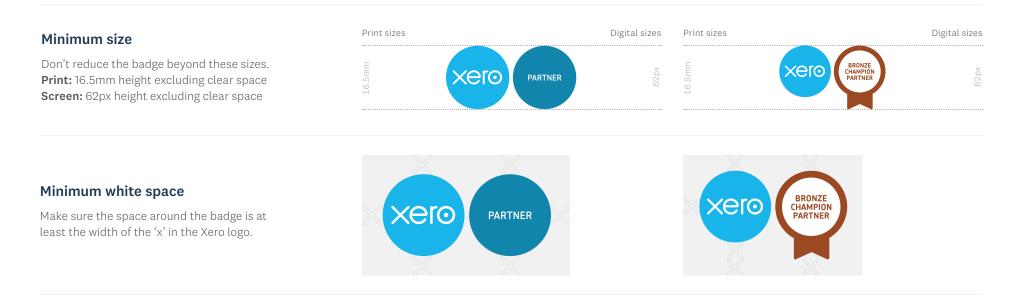

- In print
- On screen/online
- In building and vehicle signage

See examples of use

Format

Print: Use EPS or PDF files as they reproduce better in print. Failing this, use the high resolution JPEG file, but don't enlarge it beyond the original size.

Screen: EPS, PNG and PDF file formats are best.

Use alongside partner status badges

If you want to use your Xero partner status badge and your certified advisor badge together, contact your account manager or brand@xero.com to get a combined badge as shown here.

Partner status and champion badge colours

Preferred versions

Use the coloured version of the badge if you can. It must be placed on a white or very light background.

Alternate versions

If you need to place the badge on a dark or coloured background, use the white version. If placed over a photo, position it over a portion of the photo with minimal detail. Out of focus areas work well.

4. Specialisation badges

Who can use

The specialisation badges can be used by practices and individuals.

Where to use

Specialisation badges are only for use on digital items like email signatures, web pages and online profiles.

See examples of use

Format

Use the PNG format. To retain the quality, don't enlarge the PNG file beyond the original size.

Minimum size

Don't reduce specialisation badges beyond these sizes.

Specialisation badges excluding compliance badges: 62px height excluding clear space.

Compliance badges: 50px height excluding clear space.

Minimum white space

Specialisation badges excluding compliance badges: Make sure the space around the badge is at least the height of the 'x' in the word XERO on the badge.

Compliance badges: There are no minimum space requirements for compliance badges.

Specialisation badge colours

Except for ready badges, specialisation badges are made up of three colours or three shades of blue, one of which is Xero blue. They are designed to be used on a white background.

Preferred version

Use the version of the badge with black text if you can. It must be placed on a white or very light background.

Alternate version

If your only option is to place the badge on a dark or coloured background, use the version with white text.

Compliance badge colours

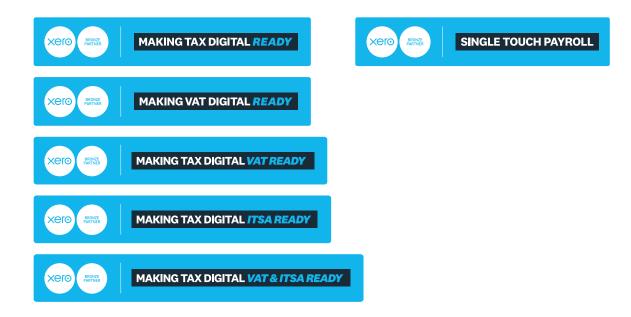

Compliance badges always include the Xero logo in white on a blue background. There's no alternate version.

Using alongside your partner status badge

If you want to use your Xero partner status badge and your compliance badge together, contact your account manager or brand@xero.com to get a combined badge as shown here.

5. Examples of use

In email signatures

Your email signature is a great place to showcase your Xero partnership, certifications or specialisations.

Deciding what to use

When deciding which badge(s) to use in your email signature, think about what you want to communicate to the people you send emails to.

Do you want to emphasise your experience with Xero, or your expertise in a specific industry?

Multiple Xero badges

We recommend keeping to one line of Xero badges in your email signature for maximum effect. However, if you wish to display more, use one of the combined versions and position any other specialisation badges underneath.

On business cards

Your business card is a great place to showcase your Xero partnership, certifications or specialisations.

We recommend using your status badge on one side, and any other accolades on the other.

Placement and size of Xero badges

When arranging content on your business card, your logo and personal information should be most prominent, with your Xero badges supporting these.

Due to the standard size of a business card being $88.9 \times 50.8 \text{ mm}$ or $3.5 \times 2 \text{ inches}$:

The maximum height at which you can use your Xero badge is 16.5mm.

The minimum height at which you can use your Xero badge is 12.5mm.

Multiple Xero badges

When deciding which badge(s) to use on your business card, think about what you want to communicate to the people you give business cards to.

Do you want to emphasise your experience with Xero, or your expertise in a specific industry?

Keep in mind though, that sizing guidelines restrict you to using a maximum of 2 Xero badges side by side or vertically. Make sure to adhere to the white space rules as well.

On the web

You may choose to promote your Xero partnership and certifications in your website footer, and on pages where you describe the services you offer or explain online accounting. Badges can also be used in team member profiles.

When you include the Xero logo, image or other content on a web page, please follow these branding, web accessibility and SEO requirements.

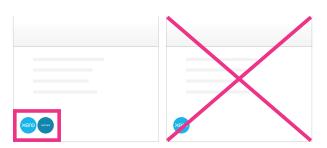

Always use the partner status badge with the Xero logo

Follow these rules for placing the Xero logo on your website:

Use the partner status badge – the one that includes both the Xero logo and your partner status – never the Xero logo on its own

CORRECT BADGE EXAMPLE:

INCORRECT BADGE EXAMPLE:

The size of the Xero partner status badge must be no larger than your own logo

Link to your listing on the Xero advisor directory if you have one; otherwise link to the Xero home page at xero.com

Placement

Make sure you follow the Xero badge placement guidelines for correct sizing and spacing.

Xero images

For all Xero images (including partner badges):

Include ALT text. In fewer than 125 characters, describe the image so someone could visualise it without having seen it.

Link the image to xero.com

EXAMPLE:

Alt text: A business person works on a laptop in an open-plan office

Xero copy

Include ALT text with your partner status badge as follows:

Partner: Xero partner badge
Bronze partner: Xero bronze partner badge
Silver partner: Xero silver partner badge
Gold partner: Xero gold partner badge
Platinum partner: Xero platinum partner badge

If you re-use copy that was originally written by or came from Xero:

- Make sure you edit it so it's clear that it's you talking, not Xero itself
- Review it at least six-monthly to check it's not out of date

Using partner badges on social media

In social posts, make your logo more prominent than your Xero partner badge. And follow the guidelines for colour, sizing, spacing and placement.

Using compliance badges on social media

CORRECT SOCIAL TILE EXAMPLE:

ACME BOOKKEEPERS

In photographic social tiles, always position compliance badges right at the bottom right hand corner of your posts.

PHOTOGRAPHIC EXAMPLE:

GRAPHIC WITH HEADLINE EXAMPLE:

You can use a short headline

SINGLE TOUCH PAYROLL READ

INCORRECT SOCIAL TILE EXAMPLE:

Print advertising

Using traditional mediums such as print advertising in a magazine or newspaper is a great ways to promote your Xero partnership.

A4 EXAMPLE:

Note: Industry specialisation and individual certification badges are only for use on digital media. They are not to be printed for use in print advertising.

Photography

Use clear, professional photography.

Your Xero partner badge

Ensure your Xero partner badge is noticeably smaller than your own logo to maintain the correct hierarchy.

Messaging

Know exactly what you're offering and consider the best way to say just that.

Call to action

Give your audience a clear way to follow up with you if they're interested in what you're offering.

Your logo

Position your logo clearly " in a prominent position.

Clear, functional building signage helps you be seen. It's also a great place to promote your Xero partnership.

Note: Industry specialisation and individual certification badges are only for use on digital media. They are not to be printed for use on buildings.

Xero partner badge and logo proximity

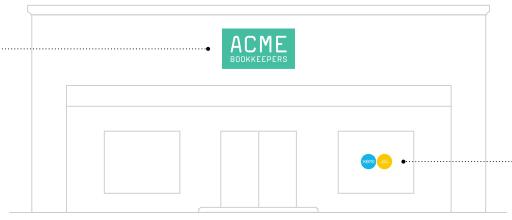

The Xero partner badge must only exist on a facade that your logo is on. There should be at least two times the width of the partner badge of clear space between the two.

Your logo

Your business logo should be the biggest piece of signage. Keep it clear, in a prominent position, and at a size that people will see from a fair distance. If your business has multiple viewable facades, you may want to consider having your logo on each one to maximise visibility.

For building signage questions and approvals, please contact brand@xero.com.

Your Xero partner badge

If you want to use your badge on a window or wall, ensure it's noticeably smaller than your business logo but still at a size that people will be able to see from a reasonable distance. Print the badge in CMYK or spot colour. If you need help with sourcing a badge to print, contact your account manager. Vehicle signage generally follows the same guidelines as building signage. Keep it clear and consider the distance and time that people will have to view the sign.

> ACME BOOKKEEPERS

SIDE-ON SUGGESTION:

Note 1: If your vehicle is ever sold or passed on and no longer represents your business, please be sure you properly remove the Xero and partner logos. Note 2: Industry specialisation and individual certification badges are only for use on digital media. They are not to be printed for use on cars.

REAR SUGGESTION:

Using Xero videos on your website

We love it when our partners want to use Xero videos (or other content). We encourage you to share what you or your clients would find useful including educational content and ads you find on our YouTube page or Xero TV.

Over time we'll tweak, update or retire old video content (including all content within Xero's intellectual property) at our discretion, so it's a good idea to occasionally check any Xero videos you've embedded on your website to make sure they're still accessible.

5. Other use of Xero brands and content

When you use our brands, it reflects on our business as well as yours. Please contact your account manager for approval if you want to use our brands (or any other Xero content) outside the scope of these guidelines.

We want to make the approval process quick and easy and will do our best to give you a speedy and helpful response. Here are some rules to help you know what to expect.

Xero brand and content rules

- 'Xero' is a registered trade mark and you can only use it as set out in these guidelines, or as otherwise approved by us. Your use of 'Xero', as well as all associated goodwill, inures to our benefit (which means we can rely on your use of 'Xero' in the unlikely event that our trademark rights are challenged).
- You can't use 'Xero' in your company name, business name, domain name or social media handle. You also can't use 'Xero' in the names of your products or services.
- Apart from 'Xero', the Xero brands include the Xero logo, the Xero brand blue, and the Xero tagline 'Beautiful business'. Except where the Xero logo is used as part of a Xero badge, you can't use these Xero brands.
- You can't apply for, or help anyone else to secure the registration of, any trade mark, company name, business name or domain name which contains or is confusingly similar to 'Xero' or any other Xero brand. You also can't attack, or help anyone else to attack, our applications for, or registrations of, Xero brands.

- When you're marketing or selling Xero-related products or services, your brand must be the dominant brand. And you can't use an interface which is so similar to Xero's websites or products that it might cause confusion among your or Xero's customers. It must be clear your websites and products aren't provided by Xero directly.
- You can take screenshots of our websites and products to include in your training material. But you can't take any other content from our websites or products except where the content has been marked as available for partner use.
